This Blog is intended to document the journey that I make getting a Lambretta LD 150 on the road. I have no idea how difficult it is going to be or how long it will take but I shall enjoy looking back and seeing how I overcame the problems, who I met on the way and assessing if it was really worth it. Having said that I guess I should get underway.

The tray was a lot wider than the Lambretta size and when I removed the rubber mat in the bottom of the tray I could see why. The tray had been modified by bending the back flange down and attaching a thin plate. I guess to accommodate a non standard battery. I can see the sense of this as Lambretta battery is very expensive at around £70.
