Yes, in my advice LOMS was the best 'educational' resource to develop skills and best practices for case interviews. What differentiates LOMS from other books/resources is that it provides examples of the right and wrong way to go through a case interview. Very good for background knowledge and just starting out. That said, you also need:

Victor Cheng's LOMS : consulting - reddit.com

In his LOMS programme, Victor Cheng advocates for a much simpler method than Case In Point and suggests you should only learn two frameworks: the profit framework for profitability cases, and a general framework for all other cases (Product, Consumer, Company, Competition). The benefit of this approach is its simplicity.

This shortcoming is a big problem for LOMS, as the cases used are all ones which are easily solved by standard frameworks. As such, relying too much on Victor Cheng's material opens you up for nasty surprises in interview. 2. Practice on your own. For solitary preparation, perhaps the best use of your time is to work on your mental mathematics.
