Mathematical Physics II

Hello r/Physics,. I am about to start my second course on mathematical physics and I am terrified.I

scored a mid C on my first math-phys course and I want to try my best for a B this time around (usually a high-B to low-A student, but math-phys was a massive slap in the face for me).

Physics 834: Mathematical Methods - Department of Physics

We begin our tour of useful mathematics with what is called the calculus of variations. Many physics problems can be formulated in the language of this calculus, and once they are there are useful tools to hand. In the text and associated exercises we will meet some of the equations whose solution will occupy us for much of our journey.
