If you really want a good 110 Lincoln, get a 135 T or 135 Plus depending on if you like the taps. But there is a big difference in the price of a weld pack. Since the weld pack series was made for mass distributors I know they are a little inferior but still good machines if you stay in its boundaries. I bought the gas kit and use it.

I recently bought a 7-9 year old lincoln weld pak 100 off craigslist and have started to weld for the first time. I started using the flux core wire for some suspension components on my car and am going to be starting on some thinner sheet metal that I want to use MIG on. The welder came with the gas conversion already installed, all I had to do was buy a tank which I did.
